Self-Identification By law, you are not required to identify the race or ethnicity of your child on school forms. However, if you choose not to identify the race and ethnicity of your child, school staff will choose for you. When school staff fills out the race and ethnicity questions on behalf of the student and parent/guardian, it is called 'observer identification'. Schools will only use observer identification as a last resort. We prefer if parents fill this form out instead because it is more accurate. Student race and ethnicity information is collected for the purpose of improving teaching and learning. Accurately identifying groups of students currently underserved by the education system is the first step in creating positive changes at the local, state, and national level.

Observer Identification If you decide not to fill out and return the attached race and ethnicity, school staff will do it for you (observer identification). To do this, we will collect background information on your student by: • Reviewing student records, documenting the race and ethnicity of the student in previous years. • If the student has siblings, reviewing their student records, documenting their previous race and ethnicity information. • Talking with counselors and teachers who have had the student previously. • Using responses to the home language survey to identify the student's home language. If we conduct observer identification, we will inform you of the categories we have chosen for your child. As a parent, you always have the option of changing the race and ethnicity records kept at the school. To do this, you can come into the school and ask to change it at the front office.
